

DEMOCRATS AND G. O. P. FAR APART ON PEACE TREATY

Reconciliation Between Factions Or Parties Is Highly Improbable—Wilson's Oregon Letter Causes Talk.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Special Correspondent of The News Scimitar.)

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Political events of the last 24 hours have emphasized the improbability of a reconciliation between the various factions in both the Democratic and Republican parties who have taken their respective attitudes toward the peace treaty and League of Nations during the past year.

Three divisions exist in each party and by virtue of their similarity they appear now to be the nucleus of three political parties.

President Wilson's letter to the Oregon Democrats, asking for the unqualified endorsement of the treaty and league, followed by the announcement of Republican leaders in Chicago that they would stand on the League reservations, now been attacked by the so-called "irreconcilables," led by Senators Johnson and Borah, and a bolt from the Republican ranks and all are condemned.

Outlook As It Appears.

The outlook at present for the presidential nominations, therefore, would appear to be this:

Republican—Wood or Hoover, on platform of League reservations, and their chances about in the order named.

Democrats—McAdoo, Cox or Palmer, on a platform written by President Wilson, advocating unqualified adoption of the treaty, but accepting interpretative reservations, such as those of the Hitchcock reservations.

Independent—Senator La Follette, on a platform opposing the entire treaty and league and reservations.

Support for a Third Party.

Support for the third party will come from friends of William Jennings Bryan, who probably will wage an unsuccessful fight in the San Francisco convention against the Wilson platform, though Mr. Bryan himself would be prevented from supporting a third party which condemned the treaty and league, inasmuch as he himself is ready to accept the League reservations in the interests of a start toward peace.

Support for the third party will come also from those Democrats, particularly of Irish extraction, who think article 10 of the covenant interferes with the prospect of Irish freedom, and they are lining up solidly behind Hiram Johnson.

Of course, Republicans fond of Johnson will join a third party if he or someone of his views is on the ticket. The new party will acquire strength from the so-called liberal or radical wings of the two parties.

The readjustment or readjustment of political forces is causing no little concern to both Republicans and Democrats. The Republicans are surprised by confident that the defections will not be considerable.

The Democrats think the departure of Johnson and his following from the regular Republican party will make the League reservation program easy to attack, and that the real friends of the league will see the Democratic platform as the only means of bringing about an early partnership of the United States in the present League of Nations.

But, irrespective of the treaty issue, the personal questions in each party are getting more and more vital.

McAdoo Has Strength.

William Gibbs McAdoo has the edge on the Democratic nomination. By insisting on unqualified endorsements, and keeping himself out of the office-seeking class by maneuvers of receptiveness only, he has impressed Democrats in the capital here as a shrewd politician.

Mitchell Palmer is well liked and probably has more strength among the members of the Democratic national committee than has McAdoo, but the latter was in the game before Palmer began. Delegates were tied to the McAdoo bandwagon when that individual was secretary of the treasury and director-general of railroads.

McAdoo got an early start for the nomination. Added to this are the mistakes made by Palmer—or rather the group he has rightly or wrongly antagonized. He is under attack for failing to reduce the cost of living, for alienating labor by his policy in the coal injunction suits, and for his wholesale raids on so-called "reds."

The last charge influences probably only the radical end of the Democratic party, which, in any event, would not stick with the Wilson kind of Democracy, no matter whether Palmer, McAdoo or any other heir of the Wilson policies were nominated. This group still holds Mr. Wilson responsible for Postmaster-General Burleson's repression of "liberal" periodicals and considers the treaty and league objectionable as not being liberal enough, not

McAdoo and Palmer.

But, on the whole, Mr. McAdoo, being out of public office since the armistice, has seemed to improve his chances with the rank and file of the Democrats, while Mr. Palmer has been under fire right along.

Cox of Ohio is a serious contender, but just now Mr. McAdoo seems to be in the lead. That is not an individual opinion. It is the consensus of the Democrats who are on the inside of things and who know what the leaders of delegations are about to do on the final count at San Francisco.

As for the Republican nomination, the strength of Gov. Lowden grows. His pronouncements on the league of nations are satisfactory to the Lodge reservationist group, and he brings, moreover, an administrative record in government affairs in Illinois as well as an experience in congress as an asset in securing harmony with the legislative branch of the government as well as an efficiency program in the executive office.

Maj.-Gen. Wood has a splendid organization and has surprised even his admirers here by the way he has moved forward. But if the truth be told the disinterested leaders are afraid to name a soldier candidate.

The way the fight on the bonus bill has fluctuated is an indication of the uncertainty here as to what might happen to a soldier candidate and the opposition to universal military training which killed that measure in the House of Representatives is another sign of the unexpected weakness of the soldier element in our politics at the close of a big war.

The situation is, of course, full of uncertainties—but today it looks like McAdoo for the Democratic nomination and Senator Johnson for the third party, with the chances of Herbert Hoover being the Republican candidate still not an impossible contingency. His chances for the Democratic nomination are gone.

He has read himself out of that party by his attitude toward the California primaries, and he has failed to restore Republican strength by his hesitancy to declare himself for a Republican.

McAdoo and Johnson are in the front rank today.

Women Hold All Positions In City Of Jackson, Wyo.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 13.—Women will occupy all positions in the government of Jackson, Wyo., as a result of their defeat of men candidates by a two-to-one vote in yesterday's election. There were two tickets in the field, one composed entirely of men and the other of women, the only issue in the campaign being the question of sex.

Jackson is in the community about which Owen Wister wrote in "The Virginian." It has a population of nearly 300 and is said to be one of the most isolated towns in the country. It lies south of Yellowstone National park and is surrounded by mountains. The nearest railroad is 75 miles away.

Silence Of Moscow Station A Puzzle

LONDON, May 13.—At 2125 o'clock Sunday afternoon the Bolshevik wireless station at Moscow suddenly stopped sending in the middle of a sentence and since then has been silent.

Wireless experts in all the stations of Europe are puzzled over this fact, according to a representative of the Marconi company, in an interview with the Daily Mail.

"Something unusual evidently has happened," says the Mail, adding that "the fact that no emergency installation has been used suggests that the interruption is due to some extraordinary cause."

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisifted cocoon oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisifted cocoon oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. adv.

NEW ORLEANS STARTS OLD CLOTHES DRIVE

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—Threadbare coats, shirts, trousers, last year's straw hats and resoled shoes were the order of the day here, signaling the opening of the city's second organized drive on the high cost of living. Proclaimed "old clothes day" by Acting Mayor Hicks as a part of the campaign begun at Tulane university, the celebration was intended to arouse interest in the organization of the "Wearers and Patchers clubs" designed as were the overall clubs to force down the cost of clothing.

Indications early today were that the movement was meeting with general support, hundreds of business men appearing at their offices in once discarded garments. Finery of all sorts was taboo. Originators of the plan predicted a far more beneficial effect than resulted from the overall movement and expressed belief that the movement would spread.
